ACLS Faculty Responsibilities

All Faculty members are responsible for quality assurance and the educational component of the American Heart Association’s Emergency Cardiovascular Care Programs. ACLS Faculty consists of ACLS Instructors who, because of their exemplary service, have been appointed to ACLS Faculty by the American Heart Association and the Resuscitation Council of Southern Africa.

ACLS Faculty responsibilities include:

- Serving as an expert resource on ACLS issues and protocols to ACLS Training Sites, ACLS Instructors, and ACLS Training Site staff.
- Guiding and assisting ACLS Training Sites in the development of ACLS Programs.
- Being able to serve in an unbiased, objective capacity.
- Recognizing and avoiding conflicts of interest, whether real or perceived.
- Conducting on-site visits to ACLS Training Sites and assessing adherence to AHA guidelines.
- Supporting community Chain of Survival initiatives.
- Mentoring new ACLS Faculty members and ACLS Instructors.
- Overseeing quality assurance.
- Monitoring ACLS Instructors’ teaching abilities and completion of required documentation.
- Involvement in at least one ACLS Instructor Course per year if demand permits.
- Monitoring at least 4 new or existing instructors per year.
- Maintaining current valid ACLS Instructor status.
- Attending orientation and updates as required.
- Cultivating and mentoring new and potential candidates for ACLS Faculty.
- Ensures that all required documentation is submitted to the RCSA within a reasonable time and that one’s own TS is auditable with regards to adherence to policy and procedure.

ACLS Faculty members are appointed for a two-year period, whereafter reappointment is required. A reappointment application must be submitted, detailing how the ACLS Faculty member supported ACLS programs during the appointed term. Reappointment will be determined by fulfilment of the above ACLS Faculty responsibilities during the previous term (And as per RCSA Policy 24(a)).

All Faculty members are responsible for encouraging and driving the QA and QI, ensuring TS admin reviews are up-to-date and progressive in each of the TSs under their ambit of responsibility. As is the norm in the USA AHA, this function is voluntary and without financial compensation.
